9/11 Panel: Iraq Not Involved

Commission disputes link between Saddam, al Qaeda

WASHINGTON | Rebuffing Bush administration claims, the independent commission investigating the Sept. 11 attacks said Wednesday no evidence exists that al Qaeda had strong ties to Saddam Hussein.

Although Osama bin Laden asked for help from Iraq in the mid-1990s, Saddam's government never responded, according to a report by commission staff based on interviews with government intelligence and law enforcement officials. The report asserted "no credible evidence" has emerged that Iraq was involved in the Sept. 11 strikes.

The claims that bin Laden and Saddam were in league were central to the Bush administration's justification for going to war in Iraq.

As recently as Monday, Vice President Dick Cheney said in a speech that the Iraqi president "had long-established ties with al Qaeda." And last fall he cited what he called a credible but unconfirmed intelligence report that Mohamed Atta, ringleader of the 19 Sept. 11 hijackers, met in Prague, Czech Republic, with a senior Iraqi intelligence official before the attacks. The commission concluded no such meeting occurred.

Secretary of State Colin Powell, asked about the commission report, said the administration stands by its assertions that there were links between al Qaeda and Iraq. CURT ANDERSON (AP)

Feeling Battered? Try Beer

Beer won't just give you that tingly feeling on the inside — it can also serve as a salve for the outside forces that ail you, a German brewer says. The small Neuzeller Kloster Brewery in the village of Neuzelle brews what it calls a bathing beer in addition to its usual assortment of beverages, Reuters reported. The beer — a product for external and internal use, according to its label — is a hit in the relaxation room at Germany's Hotel Esplanade, where patrons soak up the suds during bathing treatments. # Al Qaeda Envisioned 10-Jet Attack

9/11 panel report details original plans for a much larger strike

WASHINGTON | Sept. 11 plot mastermind Khalid Shaikh Mohammed originally planned a much bigger attack involving 10 hijacked planes, one of which he would pilot and land after killing all the male passengers, the independent commission investigating the Sept. 11 attacks revealed in a report Wednesday.

Based on documents and interviews with government officials, the panel said Mohammed initially proposed using 10 planes to hit CIA and FBI headquarters, unidentified nuclear plants and tall buildings in California and Washington state, in addition to the World Trade Center, Pentagon and White House or Capitol building.

Mohammed, who is in U.S. custody at an undisclosed overseas location, told interrogators that rather than crashing his hijacked plane into a target, he wanted to land and make a political statement.

He proposed killing every male passenger aboard, landing at a U.S. airport and making a “speech denouncing U.S. policies in the Middle East before releasing all the women and children,” the report said.

A second prong of the attack involved hijacking of U.S. planes flying over the Pacific and crashing or exploding them in mid-air, according to the report.

Both of the broader plots were rejected by Osama bin Laden, who ultimately approved targeting the United States with four planes.

The commission reported that Al Qaeda is actively trying to replicate the destruction of that day, though the terrorist network has been weakened by losing its sanctuary in Afghanistan and many leaders to U.S. strikes and arrests. The terror organization also is trying to obtain a nuclear weapon and is “extremely interested” in chemical, radiological and biological attacks, including the use of anthrax, the commission said.

Reports issued by the Sept. 11 commission Wednesday revealed new details about the plot for the attack and about al Qaeda's operations:

→ Osama bin Laden originally wanted the attacks to occur on May 12, 2001, seven months after the al Qaeda attack on the USS Cole in Yemen.

→ Hijacker Mohammed Atta intended to crash his plane into the streets of New York if he couldn't strike the World Trade Center.

→ Bin Laden wanted the fourth plane to strike the White House, but Atta believed the White House was too difficult to hit.

→ There is no evidence that the wife of the Saudi ambassador to the United States, Princess Haifa al-Faisal, directly or indirectly provided any money to the Sept. 11 conspiracy, answering questions about whether the royal family provided some support to the hijackers or al Qaeda.

COLUMBUS, OHIO | A man charged with plotting to blow up a shopping mall slammed his face on a table and smiled vacantly Wednesday in a courtroom where a federal magistrate ordered tests to determine his competency to stand trial.

Authorities have accused Nuradin Abdi, 32, of plotting an attack with admitted al Qaeda member Iyman Faris, who is now imprisoned for never-acted-on plans to sabotage the Brooklyn Bridge. Hundreds of Abdi's supporters gathered to proclaim his innocence at the courthouse where Magistrate Mark Abel ordered the Somali national transferred to a federal psychiatric facility.

Abel found that Abdi's behavior in jail and his attorney's difficulties communicating with him made an evaluation necessary. (AP)

Bush Looks to Rally Troops

President gives pep talk, saying democratic, free Iraq is 'on the way'

MACDILL AIR FORCE BASE, FLA. | President George W. Bush gave a pep talk on Wednesday to U.S. forces in Afghanistan and Iraq, claiming steady progress toward democracy in both countries despite a surge in violence in Iraq.

"The future of a free Iraq is now coming into view," Bush told several thousand troops in a giant hangar at this waterfront Tampa, Fla., air base that is home to the U.S. Central Command. "A democratic, free Iraq is on the way."

His remarks were beamed to troops in Iraq and Afghanistan by a satellite hookup, and Bush said he understood the hardships of the long tours of duty that have strained morale among some soldiers.

The president also made it clear that U.S. troops will remain in Iraq and Afghanistan for some time to come. "We have come not to conquer, but to liberate people and we will stand with them until their freedom is secure," he said.

Bear Takes Fateful Turn Into Hospital

ROCKY MOUNT, VA. | A full-grown black bear was shot and killed after it wandered into a hospital Tuesday night, authorities said.

Franklin County Sheriff Quint Overton said when the 300-pound male bear wandered in front of Carilion Franklin Memorial Hospital, it activated a sensor that opens the hospital's doors.

The bear walked through a couple of hallways and into a computer room, said Lt. Karl Martin of the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries.

Officers planned to sedate the bear, but because the hospital was nearly full they were worried what could happen if the bear were to get loose. An officer shot the bear twice and killed it, Martin said. No one was injured. (AP)

On Tuesday, an Islamic Web site showed a videotape of Paul Johnson Jr. wearing a blindfold. Johnson's captors threatened to kill him unless Saudi authorities release al Qaeda prisoners within three days. KRISTA LARSON (AP)

Militants Target Iraq's Oil Pipelines

U.S. logistics base, central Baghdad also attacked

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Insurgents struck at the heart of Iraq's economic livelihood Wednesday, blasting a major pipeline to halt vital oil exports and killing the top security chief for the northern oilfields.

A rocket slammed into a U.S. logistics base near Balad, 50 miles north of Baghdad, killing three U.S. soldiers and wounding 25 other people, including two civilian workers, the military said.

A mortar exploded in central Baghdad after midnight, setting off sirens in the U.S.-controlled Green Zone headquarters but causing no casualties or damage. A rocket or rocket-propelled grenade landed in the walled garden of the Palestine Hotel, headquarters of numerous Western news organizations, but failed to explode.

An explosion before dawn Wednesday damaged a pipeline carrying crude oil from Iraq's southern fields to the Basra oil terminal in the Persian Gulf. Iraqi engineers had diverted crude shipments to that pipeline after another was bombed two days ago.

"Due to the damage inflicted on the two pipelines, the pumping of oil to the Basra oil terminal has completely stopped," said Samir Jassim, spokesman of the state-owned Southern Oil Co. "Exports have come to halt."

Gunmen killed Ghazi Talabani, the official in charge of protecting Iraq's northern oilfields, in an ambush in Kirkuk. Gen. Anwar Amin of the Iraqi Civil Defense Corps said three gunmen attacked Talabani's car after his bodyguard briefly left the vehicle in a crowded market. ROBERT H. REID (AP)

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ The Organization of the Islamic Conference, the world's largest Islamic group, threw its support Wednesday behind Iraq's interim government, saying it will "actively assist" the administration as it takes power. The move is a change for Muslim nations who shunned an earlier U.S.-backed council.

Fighters Ordered Out of 2 Iraqi Cities

NAJAF, IRAQ | The radical Shiite cleric whose uprising left hundreds dead ordered members of his militia Wednesday to leave the holy cities of Najaf and Kufa — a key part of an agreement to end fighting with American forces.

Muqtada al-Sadr, in a statement issued by his office, called on anti-American fighters who came from other parts of Iraq to return home

"to carry on their duties as God wants."

Most of al-Sadr's fighters in Najaf and its twin city, Kufa, are believed from this area and are not covered by the order. Al-Sadr also has told followers not to display weapons in public, but unarmed militiamen continue to congregate around the major Islamic shrines, ostensibly to provide security. (AP)

Women Heard, But Not Seen at Saudi Meeting

Female faces obscured during conference on social role of women

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | One woman criticized rules that keep Saudi women from teaching boys. Another said working women should be allowed to do more than teach. Still others called for more rights for divorced women.

Saudi women were allowed to be heard — but not seen — at a three-day forum this week on their status in this conservative Islamic kingdom.

The King Abdul Aziz Center for National Dialogue invited 70 prominent Saudis, half of them women, to the holy city of Medina to discuss the role of women.

Men sat in one room, women in another. They shared their views through video conferencing, although the men faced a blank screen in deference to bans on women showing their faces in public.

The forum was covered by state television and by the private Saudi-owned station Al-Arabiya, which focused its cameras on the men as it aired the voices of the women.

The forum ended Tuesday with vague calls for women to be given more opportunities to work and to participate in public life, and a pointed reminder that their role as wives and mothers was "an essential job." SALAH NASRAWI (AP)

World's Refugee Population Falls To 10-Year Low

GENEVA | The number of refugees worldwide has fallen to 9.7 million, the lowest level in at least a decade because of increased international efforts to help uprooted people, the U.N. refugee agency said Thursday.

A key reason for the drop was the continued return of refugees to Afghanistan. More than half of the 1.1 million refugees repatriated last year returned to Afghanistan; large numbers of refugees also returned home to Angola, Burundi and Iraq.

UNHCR said the latest figure for refugees — compiled for the end of 2003 — was down 920,000 from the previous year. Refugee numbers were down in all the five world regions covered by UNHCR. (AP)

Venezuela Battles Giant Weed

Aquatic plant's growth outpaces attempts to dredge it out of lake

CARACAS, VENEZUELA | Efforts to remove an aquatic weed from Venezuela's largest lake are barely keeping up with its growth, the environment minister said Wednesday.

The green plant, known as duckweed or lemna, covers about 12 percent of Lake Maracaibo's 5,400-square-mile surface, said Ana Elisa Osorio.

The lake in western Venezuela is one of South America's largest bodies of water and is an important oil-producing region. Since World War I, about 14,000 oil wells have been drilled in the lake.

Workers are removing the plant at a rate of 53,000 cubic feet a day. But it can double in size every 48 hours, Osorio said, and has covered an area of 4.6 billion cubic feet.

Crews have extracted about 1.5 million cubic feet since the duckweed started burgeoning several weeks ago, Osorio said. To date, most of the work has been done manually. The government is deploying dredging machines to help.

Venezuela is spending about $2 million a month for cleanup, Osorio

GREEN GIANT: Workers remove an aquatic plant that has spread over 12 percent of Maracaibo Lake's 5,400-square mile surface, in Santa Rosa de Agua, Venezuela.

said. The state-run oil company, Petroleos de Venezuela S.A., created a $750 million cleanup fund.

A spokesman for PDVSA, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the corporation had offered to provide money from its newly created $2 billion Social and Economic Development Fund. But the spokesman said no specific amount of money has been set aside for the cleanup.

Duckweed feeds off nitrogen and phosphorous contained in sewage and river runoff, said Gonzalo Godoy, a marine biologist from Zulia state.

As the plant dies and rots, it absorbs oxygen, killing fish and threatening the livelihood of thousands of fishermen, Godoy said.

Osorio said unusually heavy rains and a reduction of the lake's salt content could have contributed. Duckweed thrives in fresh water, she said. ALEXANDRA OLSON (AP)

Williams OK With 1-Year School Plan

Mayor says he's willing to meet demands of superintendent choice

WASHINGTON | Mayor Anthony A. Williams said Wednesday he would continue to aggressively recruit his top choice to lead the city's troubled public schools, even if that candidate is willing to stay in the job for only one year.

Former Long Beach, Calif., schools chief Carl A. Cohn was offered the job last week after Williams and other city officials traveled cross-country to recruit him.

"In terms of bringing in the very best superintendent, I think Carl Cohn is that person," the mayor said at his weekly press briefing.

"I believe it's better for our system to have him come in here — even if it's only for a year — and begin putting in place the building blocks to rebuild the system."

Cohn, 58, told The Washington Post in Wednesday's editions that he will not sign a long-term contract, but would consider taking the job for one year under certain conditions.

Cohn is pressing for commitments from the District of Columbia government and Congress to change how city schools are controlled. He also wants more direct control over school contracts than the current system provides.

Cohn did not return calls from The Associated Press. BRIAN WESTLEY (AP)

Board Expected To Raise Metro Fares at Meeting

WASHINGTON | Metro passengers were expected to get the news Thursday that they will be paying more to ride.

The Metro Board is expected to approve the second round of price hikes in as many years at Thursday's meeting. The transit agency's Budget Committee voted in favor of the increases last week.

Base subway fares are expected to climb 15 cents to $1.35, with the maximum rush hour fare rising 30 cents to $3.90. Local buses would cost $1.25, a nickel more, with express routes going to $3, up 50 cents. All the hikes are expected to take effect June 27.

Metro also wants to begin week-day subway service 30 minutes earlier at 5 a.m. Passengers using late night weekend service could find themselves paying rush hour fares between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. (AP)

Catholic U., NAACP Fail To Agree

WASHINGTON | Leaders of Catholic University of America and the NAACP met Wednesday to discuss the school's rejection of an application to form a campus NAACP chapter. But when it was over, there was no agreement, and the civil rights group continued its threat to sue the university.

CUA officials expressed concern that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People supports abortion rights. The school's Division of Student Life decided in April to decline the request.

"The feeling was ... that some of goals of the group could be met by groups that already existed," said the Rev. David M. O'Connell, president of CUA. "It came to the attention of the student life personnel that the NAACP had adopted a pro-abortion stance. And that made that concern part of the discussion."

The NAACP did not immediately respond to interview requests. (AP)

Independence Air Lifts Off

Low-cost carrier begins flights out of base at Dulles Airport

CHANTILLY, VA. | Independence Air, the nation's newest discount airline, welcomed its first paying customers Wednesday, launching a modest schedule of flights serving five cities out of the airline's base at Washington Dulles International Airport.

Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Newark, N.J., and Raleigh-Durham, N.C., are the first cities served by the airline, with one-way fares starting at $49. New destinations will be added beginning next week.

To control costs, the carrier is taking reservations only through its Web site and by telephone.

Independence hopes to appeal to travelers who are unable to meet advance reservation requirements for other carriers' discount fares.

"I needed a quick flight, and it was either $400 or $70, this was an easy choice," said Mike Lillis, 30, of Leesburg, Va., who was bound for Chicago.

While the bulk of the airline's service will be handled by smaller

50-seat aircraft, plans call the addition of 27 132-seat Airbus A319 jets by early 2006. The first West Coast flights will begin this fall, with the carrier eventually offering 700 daily flights to 50 markets. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Interest Spikes for Online Banking

NEW YORK | Millions of Americans are doing their banking online, and their ranks are expected to grow rapidly in coming years as more e-services become available and Internet connections get faster.

A study released Wednesday of online banking at the nation's 10 largest financial institutions found that 22 million consumers logged in to their accounts in March, a nearly 30 percent increase from a year earlier.

Most went online to view their checking or savings account balances, the study showed. But many were monitoring their credit cards, paying bills, managing credit lines or paying mortgages.

Online banking use expanded more than tenfold from 1996 to 2003, TowerGroup Research, based in Needham, Mass., said in a report last month. TowerGroup expects close to 37 percent of all U.S. households to be registered to bank online by 2007 — a total of 42.5 million households. (AP)

FUNNY, THEY DON'T LOOK LIKE CHICKS: Pronounced "Chick, chick, chick," Brooklyn's !!! came out of hardcore to become everyone's favorite funk-punk septet.

The Incredible Unpronounceable

Who are !!!? What do !!! sound like? What the heck does !!! mean?

MUSIC | In the mid-'80s, hardcore bands that felt constrained by the style morphed into speed-metal bands. But the restless hardcore bands of the mid-'90s went funk-punk instead.

At least that's how we got !!!, a bicoastal gaggle of beat merchants that comes to the Black Cat Sunday. When Sacramento punks the Yah Mos called it quits, a couple of members who nursed a jones for the groove joined forces under an excitable moniker. A few pals signed on, and the group is currently a septet.

Over the past few years, !!!

has gained a reputation among alt-dance cognoscenti for snappy singles and blistering live shows. Last year, they popped up on the wider cultural radar with "Me and Giuliani Down by the School Yard (A True Story)."

The hypnotic nine-minute opus is built on chattering guitars, rubber-band bass lines and chanted advice to N.Y. City politicians that they — and everyone else — "cut footloose."

The track anchors the new "Louden Up Now," an album whose name is meant to be taken seriously. Turned down low, this music just doesn't make sense; turned up loud, it doesn't need to.

Like just about everyone else in Brooklyn (where most of the band ended up), !!! looks to the forward-thinking dance music of the early '80s. The rigorous yet homespun vibe comes courtesy of South Bronx sisters ESG, the extended grooves, jerky horns and Eastern percussion from downtown disco savant Arthur Russell. But unlike just about everyone else in Brooklyn these days, !!! sounds as though it might one day be worthy of its own Soul Jazz compilation.

A primer on the band's name:

In the English subtitles to the 1980 art-house smash "The Gods Must Be Crazy," the clicking sounds of Ungwatsi, the language spoken by the hero, were rendered as exclamation points. Three clicks = !!!

As the clicks prove challenging to non-native speakers, the band suggests substituting "Chk Chk Chk" or any other 3 repetitive sounds." Regardless of the options available, everyone seems to go for the recommended trio, leaving many a hipster sounding as though he's calling chickens.

Funky chickens. GLENN DIXON

The Teutonic Plague

OUT & ABOUT | Vampires embody that basic contradictory quandary of human life: How can so much good and evil co-exist in our species?

Photographer Johnny de Brest adds his "photo-novel" "Vladracul" to the undying body of vampire lore. Loosely based on Bram Stoker's "Dracula," de Brest's work draws hundreds of shots chosen from 15,000 images into a film-like montage of photographic stills, divided into 12 chapters, each of which is preceded by written text.

"Vladracul" takes cues both from F.W. Murnau's stark Expressionist classic, "Nosferatu," and color-saturated contemporary fashion photography. Shot in Berlin and Poland, the story moves between the hopping streets and nightclubs of '90s Berlin and the Count Vladracul's home, Auschwitz. It's populated with lovely young bodies — many living, some dead, or not quite.

De Brest manages to respectfully place the chain-link fences of the concentration camp on the same gallery wall as Berlin's hedonistic Love Parade. The result is a condensed, manic slice of the modern struggle over German identity. The images don't preach, but thrill, like stills from a movie, or scenes from a forgotten dream. BOB MASSEY

Riot in the Seats

Avant-gardists Tone find the chair-tossing is payment enough

MUSIC | The problem with avant-garde music and performance is the pay is simply lousy. So it's all about joy. And what a joy it must be for D.C. guitar ensemble Tone to rattle the girders of the Kennedy Center.

Their six electric guitars and dual drummers should handily terrify the old-school culture vultures looking for the Tennessee Williams tribute. That's what edgy art is for, right?

But there's more terror in store. Yes, modern dance. Award-winning local choreographer Lucy Bowen McCauley has teamed with Tone to create an intensely physical experience. Her company will join the guitar ensemble on the Millennium Stage in a new collaborative work.

Bowen McCauley Dance clearly savors the challenges of moving to modern music. With pieces set to alt-rockers Camper Van Beethoven and spiky composer Gyorgy Ligeti, BMD makes a perfect match for Tone. Like a chamber orchestra with amps, Tone crosses the art of the fugue with the physics of glorious feedback.

The ensemble's pieces are perhaps too stately for smoky rock clubs. Yet one wonders if they're too visceral for the big wedding cake on the Potomac.

And that's the fun of it. Best case scenario: a flashback to Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" premiere nearly a century ago, where the piece caused a small riot. If you see anyone hoisting folding chairs (Oh, please! Oh, please!), duck. BOB MASSEY

WHAT'S MY NAME? What used to be MC5, now called DKT, but we prefer "MC3."

Love That Old-Timers Rock 'n' Roll

MUSIC | In the heat of the moment, kick out the jams. That's our advice to oldies fans looking to rock on the reunion circuit this weekend.

Friday you can stick it to the man after the freaky fashion of late-'60s Detroit with DKT/MC5 at the Black Cat. Then on Saturday you can set the way-back machine for 1982 and bask in the bombast of Asia at Jaxx.

"Wait a minute, Mr. Concert Man. We know how these 'one more time for the fans' tours work. Who's really going to be playing?"

In the case of the art-rockers-turned-pomp-poppers of Asia's classic lineup, the only man standing is keyboardist Geoff Downes — the fellow who co-wrote "Sole Survivor." The MC5's Rob Tyner and Fred "Sonic" Smith have better excuses for failing to make the gig. They're both dead, twin victims of heart failure.

The remaining trio of bassist Michael Davis, guitarist Wayne Kramer and drummer Dennis Thompson (hence "DKT") will be joined by a handful of hard-rock vets. Mark Arm of Mudhoney and Evan Dando of the, er, Lemonheads, and Marshall Crenshaw of ... OK, we don't know what the guy behind "Someday, Someway" has in common with the MC5 except a Motor City provenance.

Whatever hijinks transpire, we're betting it won't be as horrible as Dave Vanian's (of The Damned) karaoke Elvis shtick was when MC5 played London last year. GLENN DIXON

Gross boor, rich wife: 'Falstaff' is an opera from sitcom heaven

STAGE | What rich, upstanding wife-to-be wouldn't want a fat, drunken lout?

This is a question one of literature's most famous drunken louts, Sir John Falstaff, should have asked himself before messing with the two "merry wives" at the center of Antonio Salieri's "Falstaff."

Wolf Trap Opera Company presents this opera, based on Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor," in Italian with English supertitles, this weekend at The Barns.

The retired and in-debt Falstaff (Steven Mosteller) decides to woo two matrons (Laquita Mitchell and Angela Niederloh) in hopes of securing their money for himself.

COURTESY WOLF TRAP

NICE JUG: Falstaff (Steven Mosteller) searches for a rich wife to get him out of debt, but his first love is the booze.

It doesn't take the women long to figure out the scam, however, especially since the genius sends them identical love letters. The ladies plot revenge, and matters are complicated when one of their husbands becomes suspicious.

The wives play a series of pranks on Falstaff, who ends up sodden, beaten up and scared out of his wits as a result of their trickery, and of course, his own ego. But whether the antihero truly learns his lesson at the end remains to be seen.

Bluebirds, Beware

John Vanderslice, prophet and musician, always thinks ahead

MUSIC | Leave it to a guy whose band was named after the CIA's LSD experiments to finger the government for torture months before the news broke. The only thing former MK Ultra leader John Vanderslice got wrong was the locale: He was betting on Guantanamo.

A Camp X-Ray heavy and a junkie who prefers the company of the poppy to that of his pill-popping mother are just two of the unfortunates who populate the new CD "Cellar Door."

Though known as a lyricist, Vanderslice, who plays the Black Cat Thursday, can be a little blunt — as in "Up Above the Sea," where he blows away the bluebird of happiness with a rifle.

But his arrangements, even when heavy, are never less than subtle. An erstwhile four-tracker who owns San Francisco's Tiny Telephone studio, he frames his impassioned vocals in a sturdy structure that is composed largely of sonic fragments. With a four-piece band backing him up on this tour, he should do that sound justice live.

Vanderslice opens for Pedro the Lion, the moody indie-rock outfit that is the brainchild of Dave Bazan, an unapologetic Christian who believes the Holy Spirit isn't afraid of working blue when that's what it takes to get the job done.

This year's "Achilles Heel" abandons the earlier album-length fable format, but Pedro still speaks in parable. From a man whose legs have been severed by a train to a love triangle of personified southwestern states, unexpected characters play out the down-tempo drama of Bazan's moral universe.

Water, Water Everywhere

FAMILY | Every year, a boatload of people dock at Oronoco Bay Park to have a swimmingly good time at Alexandria's annual Red Cross Waterfront Festival, the biggest Red Cross fundraiser in the U.S.

Those sensing a nautical theme would be correct. But the festival is not just about big boats (although Alexandria's docks will play host to replicas of tall ships from the 17th, 18th and early 20th centuries).

The festival also offers food, crafts and traditional fair rides — including a Ferris wheel, which promises to provide a lovely view of the Potomac and surrounding areas. Athletes can scale a 30-foot climbing wall for $5 per climb.

Those looking to relive their rock 'n' roll-animal days can don leather pants and catch Friday and Saturday nights' headline performances by two federations of former bands, the International Rock Show and supergroup Superstar Voices of Classic Rock.

The Red Cross will also offer a health and safety pavilion providing medical screenings, health and safety tips and products.

Everybody Is a Star

MUSIC | Jessica Simpson is coming to town to perform a concert. But "The WB Superstar USA" just ended.

Having spent the last few weeks breathlessly glued to The WB to find out who the (fake) judges deem the worst singer in America, we're a little confused. (Reality TV will do that to you.) The winner — Jamie from Minnesota, with the impressive lungs, tone-deaf caterwauling and hair-swirling dance moves that look as if she's being attacked by an invisible swarm of bees — that's a different person than reality TV-starlet and pop singer Jessica Simpson, right?

They look alike, they both buy the premise that blonde hotness and a yes-I-can attitude are all you need to become a superstar, and both have issues with big words and subtle hints. One sings well, the other doesn't, but now we're not sure which. (Note to self: Watch more PBS.)

It's Jessica, of course, who has the pipes to back up the fame — although her fame is in large part attributable to playing the dumb blonde of our dreams on "Newlyweds," the show she co-stars in with put-upon hunk husband Nick Lachey.

But the girl has the chops. If "Superstar USA" is an argument that any deluded bimbo can be forced down the masses' throats, Simpson is an argument against that cynical view. After all, no one much cared about her until she confused tuna with chicken, which, if a genuine error, is clutch-your-stomach funny and if not, makes her the greatest conceptual comedian since Andy Kaufman.

Simpson is living proof that you can be a deluded bimbo and have real talent.

And Andy Kaufman, frankly, is no Jessica Simpson. (EXPRESS)

All That Glitters

MUSICALS | So the buzz around the colony is that if you liked "Grease," you'll absolutely love "Beehive."

You won't find a bunch of grown-ups dressed in bee suits and aerodynamic wigs belting out those beloved Jim Jacobs and Warren Casey tunes. And it's not about that fabulous big hairdo — not completely, anyway.

"Beehive" is to '60s nostalgia what "Grease" was to the '50s version — a socially conscious take on the decade sung to relatable grooves.

"Beehive" uses the volatile history of the era — the civil-rights movement, JFK's assassination, the Vietnam War and other socially and politically altering incidents — as the back story to convey a danceable lesson in musical history.

The musical features hits from a hive full of divas — and we mean divas, not watered-down pop versions unworthy of the title — including Diana Ross, Tina Turner, Connie

OH, BEEHIVE! A musical sistas act.

Francis, Aretha Franklin, Janis Joplin, The Supremes and many others. It tells the classic tale of Motown as it relates to the female artists of the time. So while musically fun and accessible, "Beehive" isn't your average history lesson.

Six women, a righteous five-piece band, 50 wig changes and 15 cans of hairspray later, you'll be dancing in the aisles. DARONA WILLIAMS

Ask Tom

I'm looking for sushi in northern Virginia this weekend — low-key, not Cafe Asia crazy.

Matsutake is pretty good. And Matuba counts a lot of fans, although I've never tried the sushi there myself.

Got a blind date this Friday and need a place for dinner that works multi-fold to spark conversation, be hip, be able to hear each other talk and doesn't clean me out.

The dessert "Trio" from Les Halles features three kinds of chocolate mousse.

Sette Osteria perhaps? (Sit outside if you can, where the noise is less.) Komi in Dupont Circle? (You can ooh and ahh over the amuse bouche.) The bar at Palena?

Sette Osteria: 1666 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-483-3070. (Dupont Circle)
Komi: 1509 17th St. NW; 202-332-9200. (Dupont Circle)

My father is coming to town this weekend and I was looking for a place to take him for brunch on Sunday. He is seriously high maintenance and doesn't hear very well. Any ideas?

Some thoughts: Ardeo in Cleveland Park, Bistro Bis on the Hill, Firefly in Dupont Circle, Les Halles on Pennsylvania Ave. (on the patio), maybe the regal looking Bombay Club (for the Indian buffet) downtown.

Bite-Sized

RECENTLY REVIEWED IN THE WASHINGTON POST

For the next few weeks, Express will feature Washington Post food critic Eve Zibart's wrap-ups of new restaurants in nearby beach towns.

Delaware's Bethany Beach keeps expanding, and so does the Route 26 strip toward Millville. Fat Tuna (319 Atlantic Ave./Route 26; 302-541-8200), which opened last fall only after the death of founding chef Mike Spurlock, is a quirky but audience-savvy take on Delmarva surf and turf fare: the pan-seared, mango mojo-drizzled

Phat Tuna, the not-your-father's lobster-crab Cadillac Cakes and the "Las Vegas Strip" bling-blinged with Black Jack (Daniel's). Two of Spurlock's dishes still bear his name, the tortilla-crusted shrimp and "Mike's Waffle," a take-this-nacho-freaks stunner of waffle fries topped with lump crab, shrimp and cheddar jack with chipotle sauce. DiFebo daughter Isabella has opened her own restaurant, called simply Isabella's (302-539-3700, just across Route 26 from her family's longtime fave; family being family, the menu features "Grandmom's Abruzzi-style rav's," spinach lasagna and homemade gnocchi).

Magnolia's (Ocean Cedar Neck Road, Ocean View, Bethany; 302-539-5671) is undergoing a huge renovation and adding a raw bar; while the Village Rotisserie Cafe (29 Atlantic Ave., Ocean View; 302-537-6157) specializes in carryout chicken. Also new: North Bethany's Seaside Grill (Route 1, 31/2 miles north of Route 26; 302-539-4415) and the Blue Crab crabhouse (Garfield Parkway next to Town Hall; 302-537-4700).

Eve Zibart's dining reviews appear every Friday in The Washington Post's Weekend section. This week she samples cheap, hearty New Mexican cuisine in Vienna.

Nets Jostle to Keep Viewers

Spinoffs, new shows and no reruns enliven between-season TV

SCHEDULING | Life, say some philosophers, is a cycle with no beginning or end. Sort of like the scheduling philosophy nowadays at the broadcast networks, blurring the lines between one season and another.

The networks' berserker schedules have a higher plan: Keep viewers occupied by keeping them befuddled. Then they'll forget to look elsewhere. Like on cable.

But the networks are also offering something downright revolutionary: first-run series with no mandatory repeats. NBC's "The West Wing," ABC's "NYPD Blue" and the WB's "One Tree Hill" are among the series that will air without reruns. Say again? No reruns!

JUST ONCE: No reruns for "West Wing."

The nets have also made a science of breeding spinoffs from their hit shows. NBC will spawn "Law & Order" No. 4 early next year. And CBS will premiere "CSI: New York." Look for a new shade of tell-tale "CSI" color coding: The chosen filmic look is Urban Blue. "CSI: Miami" will surely stick with Tawny Citrus, while the original series, set in Las Vegas, favors Midnight Chrome. Thus will "CSI" be available in three decorator colors! FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

ON TV TONIGHT

THAT NAUGHTY BBC
INTRODUCING GRAHAM NORTON (9 p.m., Comedy Central) offers viewers a half-hour glimpse at the Irish-born talk-show host whose series "The Graham Norton Effect" debuts next Thursday. Norton's British talk show "So Graham Norton" has been a hit on BBC America. Norton manages to combine a quick wit and a decidedly off-color sensibility with genuine warmth.

Norton

THE INJUSTICE OF JUSTICE
According to figures cited on the hour-long documentary "The Plea" on FRONTLINE (9 p.m., PBS), an astounding 95 percent of cases result in plea-bargaining. And, say the judges, lawyers and prosecutors interviewed, it's the only way the courts can work. If a higher number of defendants demanded a jury trial, the system would collapse.

In several of the cases presented here, defendants who professed innocence felt they were coerced into pleas by busy lawyers, or judges who told them they would receive the maximum sentence if they were convicted after a jury trial.

In Brief

FOOTBALL

Redskins Sign 2 Linemen

The Washington Redskins on Wednesday signed Demetric Evans and Darrell Wright, defensive linemen who played this year in NFL Europe. Evans had 24 tackles and 2 1/2 sacks with Cologne, while Wright had 20 tackles and three sacks with Amsterdam. Both have been with the Dallas Cowboys. Evans played two seasons with the Cowboys as a reserve and Wright sat out his rookie season last year after breaking his hand at Dallas' training camp. (AP)

Albert Out as Knicks' Voice

The voice of the New York Knicks is changing for the first time in over 30 years. Marv Albert has left MSG Network after providing play-by-play for the Knicks and the New York Rangers since joining the network in 1963, except for a brief hiatus in 1997-98 after he pleaded guilty to biting a former lover. ## Portugal Blanks Russia

Nuno Maniche scored in the seventh minute to help Portugal knock a short-handed Russia squad out of contention with a 2-0 victory on Wednesday at the European Championship. Upstart Greece and Spain tied 1-1 in the day's other game. (AP)

Big Changes Expected for Lakers

Jackson, Malone, Bryant may all leave L.A.

BASKETBALL | Phil Jackson stood at the podium in the interview room after the Lakers lost Tuesday's final game of the NBA finals and said there was a "pretty slim chance" he'll coach in L.A. next season.

Then he added a caveat: "Right now I'm not ready to make that decision or give that statement."

So while Jackson wouldn't commit, it certainly appeared to be a farewell. The coach said he planned to meet with members of the Lakers' organization in the days ahead to discuss a future that promises to be filled with changes.

Question No. 1 will be whether the franchise still believes Shaquille O'Neal and Kobe Bryant can coexist. Bryant plans to opt out of his contract and become a free agent, although he has said he wants to be "a Laker for life."

Team owner Jerry Buss has given every indication he wants to keep Bryant, whose fractured relationship with Jackson and O'Neal could be one of the driving forces behind an offseason of change.

Not only will Bryant be a free agent, but Gary Payton and Karl Malone also can opt out of their contracts. O'Neal — already angry that the Lakers wouldn't give him a contract extension — could demand a trade if he decides the time has come to end his association with a team that failed in its quest for a fourth title in five years.

"This summer is going to be a different summer for a lot of people. Everyone is going to take care of their own business and do what's best for them, including me," O'Neal said. CHRIS SHERIDAN (AP)

Ted Williams's Daughter Drops Fight

FAMILY FEUD | The daughter and son-in-law of the late Ted Williams have ended their two-year fight to have the baseball great's remains removed from Alcor, an Arizona cryonics lab.

Bobby-Jo and Mark Ferrell spent close to $100,000 battling Williams's estate and his son, John Henry Williams. But when the money ran out, so did their will to keep trying. A settlement was signed on Tuesday.

John Henry Williams died of leukemia in March and his body reportedly is also being stored at Alcor's facility. (AP)

Jones Demands a Hearing

Under suspicion for steroid use, track star seeks to clear name

DOPING | Olympic sprinter Marion Jones on Wednesday demanded a public hearing in her campaign to clear her name and prevent drug allegations from keeping her out of the Athens Games.

"I am not going to engage in the United States Anti-Doping Agency's secret kangaroo court. I will answer questions in a public forum that will be open for the entire world to see, hear and evaluate," she declared.

The USADA is investigating Jones and other athletes based on documents from a grand jury investigation of the Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative, which is at the center of a steroid scandal. Jones was one of several athletes who testified last fall before the grand jury that ultimately indicted four men on charges of distributing steroids to top athletes.

Marion Jones at a press conference on Wednesday denied using any steroids.

"I have never, ever used performance enhancing drugs," said Jones, who won five track medals at the 2000 Sydney Olympics.

Defendants in the steroid case include Victor Conte, founder of the Bay Area laboratory that allegedly dispensed drugs to athletes.

Conte's attorney sent a letter Monday to President Bush, Attorney General John Ashcroft and three federal prosecutors seeking help with a plea deal that would keep him out of prison in exchange for testimony implicating potential Olympic athletes. JOSH DUBOW (AP)

PAYMENTS

And Prince Michael II's College Fund Was Gone

MICHAEL JACKSON agreed to pay $15.3 million to the child he was accused of molesting in 1993, according to a confidential settlement of a lawsuit. Jackson did not admit misconduct but said at that time that he was settling the case because of its potential to harm his career, according to documents obtained Tuesday by Court TV. The 1994 settlement has been widely reported but this was the first time that a specific figure was available. (AP)

The Statute of Limitations On Your Fame Has Expired

The ex-wife of rapper Eminem, wanted by authorities after skipping out on a court-ordered drug treatment program, was arrested in a hotel, police said Wednesday. Police arrested KIMBERLY MATHERS in an Ann Arbor, Mich., hotel room Tuesday afternoon after a caller reported that she was staying there. She has dropped out of a court-ordered drug treatment program twice, and served jail time earlier this year after dropping out the first time. (AP)

Child Support Is Not Among His Myriad Talents

BOBBY BROWN was given a suspended sentence after missing three child support payments in a Massachusetts case. Brown was sentenced to 90 days in jail Tuesday for contempt of court by a family court judge, but the sentence was suspended because the payments had been made Monday. Brown was jailed in March for one day after failing to pay $63,500 he owed Kim Ward, the mother of two of his children. He was released after paying up. "I'm still trying, you know," Brown said after the hearing. "Working, you know, and that's the most I can do. I can work harder, you know, to try to keep up with the payments." (AP)

Comedian ANDY DICK pleaded not guilty on Wednesday to a misdemeanor count of pot possession of less than an ounce. He was caught last month lighting up a joint at the Coachella music festival in Indio, Calif.; a small stash was found on his person. In 1999, Dick pleaded guilty to felony cocaine possession, as well as two marijuana-related misdemeanor charges. Dick's latest project, which is slated to air this summer, is MTV's "The Assistant," an eight-episode parody of "The Apprentice." (EXPRESS)

Letters

TO THE EDITOR

LETTER-WRITER Deborah Rouse Washington complained Tuesday that Express's article on Ray Charles's death was insufficient. She also spoke for many, "especially in the black community," saying that Charles was a far greater hero than Ronald Reagan, whose death received much more attention.

Reagan was president of the United States and had a far greater effect on it. No disrespect to Charles, but it is only natural for Reagan to receive so much attention.

—KEAGAN WREN
Arlington, Va.

WHAT'S WITH the sentence in Tuesday's Express about Hispanic population growth: "[It] far outpaced the 3 percent increase in the American populace during the same time, to 290.8 million?" ("Hispanic, Asian Populations Growing"). What is the author's definition of "the American populace"? Are Asians and Hispanics not part of the American populace?

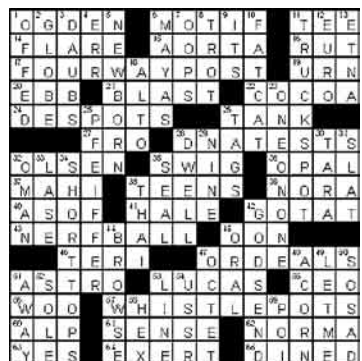

—BARBARA JACKSON
Via e-mail

Editor's note: The report compared the growth of segments of the U.S. population, such as Hispanics, to the growth of the population as a whole, including those segments.

WRITE TO EXPRESS: Letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number. Submissions may be edited for space. E-mail to inbox@readexpress.com or mail to Express Letters, PO Box 17370, Arlington, VA 22216.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — A teacher or guide from your past will return, if only in your memory, to remind you of an important lesson. Don't neglect it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You are likely to meet someone who can show you how to develop and market your skills more swiftly and successfully.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may be the leader of the pack, but there will be times in which you must turn to someone else for advice and guidance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You cannot expect to have everything you want all at once; be patient and your turn will come soon. You may be surprised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may finally capture what you've been after for some time — though it may seem as though you are still in need of something else as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You're not about to get away with anything, so don't try to be clever or cute with that someone who knows you better than anyone else.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Close contact with someone similar to yourself will change how you think about many basic things. Attitudes are being reformed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Teamwork and only teamwork will enable you to get everything done on schedule. You must be willing to share duties, and delegate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — A new relationship at work can prove more beneficial to both parties than expected. It may surprise that you have so much in common.

LIVE ONLINE

Tucker Carlson

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Conservative pundit and journalist TUCKER CARLSON was online Wednesday to discuss politics and his new weekly talk show airing on PBS, "Tucker Carlson: Unfiltered."

Many conservatives see you as a weak link in the conservative movement — someone more interested in being liked in Washington than willing to take on the Republican establishment. Your thoughts?

You're right, in that I don't consider myself part of any movement. (I'm instinctively distrustful of movements.) I represent only my own views. As for the Republican establishment, I couldn't be less interested. Neither party seems to take its own ideas very seriously. I'm still conservative, though, which is one of the reasons I often have trouble defending Bush.

My girlfriend adores you. I try to get around this by suggesting that you may well be an awful person when not on TV. Help me out here.

I would have thought the bow tie would be enough to extinguish any interest, but since you asked, I'm unpleasant before noon, and have a terrible Nicorette habit.

Assuming you voted for George Bush in 2000, are you embarrassed to admit it now, with all the scandals and failures associated with the administration?

I did vote for Bush. I'm not embarrassed about it. (Do you honestly think Gore would have been a better president?) I am embarrassed that I supported the war in Iraq.

Is your new program rolling out nationally? Do you plan to continue with CNN? Who is your favorite political bow tie wearer?

The new PBS show airs for the first time this Friday (at 8:30 p.m. in Washington). Yes, I am staying at CNN. As for my favorite political bow tie wearer, the obvious answer is Churchill, so I'll go with him.
